NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK

NEWMARKET, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2ND, 1941

Your Local Newspaper

This is "National Newspaper Week." Canadian weekly newspapers are this week calling attention to themselves and their place in the community.

Times have changed and weekly newspapers have changed with them. Radio, national magazines, metropolitan newspapers, all striving for the listening or reading time of the public, have put local weeklies to a severe test.

The Era has tried to keep pace, to be worthy of the town and district, to be worthy of the time of its readers, to be worthy of more readers.

The Era has aimed to be accurate, fair, interesting. It has striven to give the fullest possible coverage of local events and visitings.

In giving better service to readers The Era has incidentally given better service to advertisers. There have been more readers and there have been more interested readers.

During the past year The Era has made two advances stationed in Nova Scotia. which should prove to the advantage of the community which it serves.

First is admission to membership in the Audit Bureau HTLER, FIRE of Circulations. This gave national and local advertisers for the first time an audited count and break-down of circulation. Newmarket and district people take pride in The Era's net paid average (A.B.C.) circulation of over 1,200 (watch for new figures to be available shortly for TORONTO VETERAN DOESN'T the six months ending Sept. 30).

Second is admission to a group of newspapers known as "Class A Weeklies of Canada." Most of these newspapers FIRE PREVENTION WEEK "60 DAYS" represent larger towns such as Barrie, Orillia, Simcoe, Brampton, and admission is based on certain standards of > Both these forms of recognition are bringing The Era increased national advertising, and will eventually bring increased local advertising. Increased advertising revenue in turn paves the way for better service to readers and other steps forward.

The Era is fortunate in its field. There is a large this week. LAST OF MORDECAL MIL LARD FAMILY DIES NEAR OLD HOME

A link with the past was broken when Sarah Millard died in her 88th year on Sunday. For the last couple of years she lived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morning, Yonge St., near the head of the Holland Landing hill. Until then she had lived all her life nearby in the century-old house of her father and mother, Martha and Mordecai Millard.

The last of a family of ten children, Miss Millard formerly lived alone in the pre-rebellion home on the east side of the highway about 200 yards south of the first turn on the Holland Landing hill. The Millard family, of which her father was a member, owned at one time most of the land on which Newmarket is now located.

THE LASCELLES APPOINTMENT - -A LESSON?

A name like "Lascelles" always commands attention. The appointment of a gentleman of that name as Toronto's finance commissioner is of interest also because of the salary increase voted. Mr. Lascelles has been earning $4,500 a year in a lesser position in the city's service. He is now to receive $9,000, compared with his predecessor's $10,000 and apparently compared with a more distant predecessor's $18,000.

To most of us it occurs to wonder how a man who was worth $4,500 a year yesterday can today be worth $9,000 just because he has assumed greater responsibilities. Surely he was giving his best before. Many of us would have suggested gradual increases in salary dependent on performance, but would we have been right? After reading reports of the city hall discussions and the comments of the Toronto press (which deserves a large share of the credit for Toronto's high standing as a well-governed municipality) we have reached the conclusion that the city council has acted wisely in paying its new finance commissioner generously.

We won't try hard to support that conclusion, but among the reasons for a good salary are that his job is a tremendously important one to the city, that being well paid should contribute to his efficiency (and an able man in a responsible job could be poorly paid at $5,000 a year, however handsomely paid some of us might be at that figure), and that a highly-paid official will have more prestige both at city hall and in his contacts with the public.

Assuming that the decision was right, credit must be given to the city councillors who made it. It is no easier for Toronto city councillors than for the rest of us to employ someone at a higher salary than our own. It requires a certain largeness of outlook that many of us lack.

Perhaps there was just a little of that human weakness, the desire to keep others down to our own level, in our recent decision in Newmarket to let a valuable town employee go and in our failure to date to replace him. At $2,000 a year he was earning more than most of us, and we just didn't see what a big job he had, what special qualifications he had, or appreciate how many times over he was earning his salary. We looked at his salary as an expense rather than as an investment.

We are not critical of our town council, but just questioning our whole attitude as a town, for the council decision in the incident mentioned was probably reflective of the attitude of most of the rest of us. Newmarket's financial standing, viewed from the point of view of collection of taxes, arrears, retirement of debenture debt, etc., compares favorably with Toronto's, but perhaps Toronto is wiser in some respects. We raise the question for discussion.

INDUSTRIAL STRIFE

It is interesting to dig up the things that an individual said ten or fifteen or even twenty years ago to "prove" that he is now mistaken or that he is now pursuing a mistaken policy, if it be at variance with his earlier viewpoint.

Thus a periodical quotes what Prime Minister Mackedzie King had to say 23 years ago in condemnation of strikes and lock-outs as methods of settling industrial disputes.

Mr. King probably still thinks as he did 23 years ago that conciliation is the right way and the strike or the lock-out the wrong way. As prime minister, however, he is not quite as free to say what he thinks, and now as then he possibly doesn't believe that the government should force one side or the other to accept an unpalatable settlement.

The question is whether democratic countries, while fighting totalitarian countries, shouldn't adopt some compulsory settlement plan, even if the plan should prove unfair, from time to time, to employees or employers. And of course any plan would be unfair to someone, unless everybody, employer and employee, were put on a $1.30 plus board and clothing basis.

Even a leave-alone policy is preferable to that proffered last week by an Ontario government minister, "to conscript or shoot at sunrise." That would mean that we had lost the war indeed.

VOICES ACROSS THE SEA

A group of war veterans in New Liskeard, in co-operation with a Kirkland Lake radio station, have had personal messages from New Liskeard people to their soldier boys overseas recorded, to be broadcast to Britain at a time when, presumably, the boys will have been warned by letter to listen in. This is a nice idea and should cure a good many cases of homesickness.

Mr. B. K. Sandwell, editor of Toronto Saturday Night, in a broadcast from Britain last week. said that Canadian soldiers were anxious for more letters from home. Some letters are lost at sea of course, but even if none were lost there couldn't be too many of them.

The broadcast is a very nice idea, although how arranged we do not know. We are quite certain that it would not be possible for every Canadian family to send greetings in that way to members overseas. What would be feasible, however, we think, would be for a family to have a record made (Max Boag can do this in Newmarket) and send it to the boy overseas. He could take it to a canteen or perhaps to a private home and play it over and over to his heart's content. Maybe there is an idea there for a lovely but inexpensive. Christmas present for some of the lads overseas.

ANOTHER WAY TO SAVE GASOLINE

Without suggesting that the town can afford to repair all its sidewalks at the present time, it may be noted in passing that there are still many walks in bad shape. Some-for instance, the walk on the south side of Water St. hill-are even dangerous. Councillor Frank Bowser's committee on roads and bridges has done a lot of excellent work in the past couple of years. but the amount of money available for repairs doesn't seem to be sufficient to do much more than not let the walks get any worse. The war doesn't encourage spending, but, straining after an argument in support of sidewalk repairs in wartime, it might be suggested that better sidewalks would encourage walking and save gaso-

BOOTSTRAP BUSINESS

Would two or three beverage rooms and a liquor store in Newmarket be good for business? They certainly would be good for the liquor business, but would they help other business? Maybe they would, maybe they wouldn't. Some people point to Bradford as a village which has benefitted in a business way from its beverage rooms, while others think that the beverage rooms get most of the business that goes to Bradford.

While there is a certain amount of unpleasantness for the business people of Bradford thrown in, we would not be surprised if Bradford stores take in more money than they would without beverage rooms. We would guess that, anyway, for, with Newmarket and Aurora dry, Bradford is to some people like an oasis in a desert. Much of the money would go to the beverage rooms, but there would be considerable spent in Bradford stores that might otherwise be spent in Newmarket, Aurora or at the village general stores of the district. Bradford merchants are possibly benefitting at the expense of other merchants of the district.

It seems to us, however, that it is a game that only an occasional town in a district can play successfully. There is a certain amount of trade that is going to be drawn by beverage rooms and Bradford is probably getting a good share of it. To the north Sutton gets it. If Newmarket were to get on the same wagon, with the idea that business would be greatly benefitted, we would find ourselves dividing this beer-baited business with Bradford and Sutton, and probably not gaining enough to offset the depleted incomes of our own citizens who now buy at home but could not keep clear of the beverage rooms if they were in our midst. Those who sell on credit and families who live on a wage would share the rap. You may draw business that somebody else is now getting by the establishment of beverage rooms, but you can't create any new business.

The amount of money in the community can only be increased by the establishment of new productive enterprises selling to the people of other communities. Beverage rooms can only divert money now being spent elsewhere in beverage rooms or in merchandise or now being spent in Newmarket for food, milk, clothes, rent, amusements, or now going to churches, charities or war causes, or into war savings certificates, insurance or bank savings.

Beverage rooms and a liquor store and a brewers' warehouse might help business in Newmarket. They might draw to Newmarket people not now shopping here who would not only spend money with the aforementioned outlets but also with the merchants. From our chats with local merchants, however, we gather that many of them think that they would not gain as much new business in that way as they would lose from their present customers in lessened merchandise purchases and credit losses.

These thoughts of course represent our own viewpoint. Some people may think very differently. If so, we would like to hear from them. Anything any Newmarket citizen cares to write on the subject will be given space, regardless of the viewpoint taken, for we do want to be fair. We can be prejudiced and still be fair, you know, if those who see things differently will just co-operate to the extent of putting their thoughts on paper for publication.

THOSE AURORA FLASHES

"Aurora proves spectacular in this area," declares a heading in the Barrie Examiner. Had it been winter time we would have expected to read about a junior hockey game, and we would have expected too the Aurorans to trim the Northern Lights.

THE CONSCRIPTION ISSUE

(Simcos Reformer)

The conscription issue will not down. Speaking to a large audience in Toronto last week, Mr. Beverley Baxter, eminent Canadian-born journalist and member of the British house of commons, averred that he could not comprehend how Canada could earry out its pledge of all-out aid to the mother country without conscription.

From another quarter at almost the same time came a pronouncement by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce to this effect: "When in the opinion of the government, voluntary efforts fail to meet the needs of manpower for Canada's wholehearted participation in the war, business, as represented in the membership of the chamber, will readily co-operate in a policy of compulsory selective service in Canada and abroad."

Meanwhile Premier King, Hon. Mr. Ralston and their associates are calling for more men for Canada's army. Searcely a week passes that one government leader or another is not stressing the need for men. Hon. Mr. Howe recently declared that his department could completely outfit and equip a new division every five or six weeks. It is rapidly becoming apparent that whereas lack of equipment was a stumbling-block up until the past summer, now it is the lack of men which is militating against an all-out effort on Canada's for her young men from 21 to 24 years of age at SUPPORT OF RUSSIA the present time. We were reminded of this fact again last week when Ottawa announced that no longer would young men in those age categories, who enlisted in the reserve army prior to Aug. 15, 1940, be exempt from a call-up to take four months' compulsory training and to serve in the home defence forces at least for the duration of the war. It is inevitable that the reserve army will be dealt a severe blow by this measure, indicating that the department of national defence is determined to secure the necessary men for the six Canadian divisions which have been or are being mobilized.

If this is not conscription for the 21 to 24-yearolds, then it is dangerously close to it. A majority of the basic training centres, to which the recruits are assigned for the first two months of their training, report an exceptionally high perservice. In many instances, no doubt, they come to the conclusion that service with the active army is preferable to spending the duration of the war on coastal defence in remote regions of Canada. Again, many active service volunteers are in training at these basic centres and their presence must have an influence on the fourmonth trainces. Just what degree of pressure is exerted on the young men to sign up for active service is not clear, but it is certain that 100 percent enlistment, as reported from some centres, is not secured without some effort.

DOESN'T MEAN APPROVAL

(Barrie Examiner)

In an editorial entitled "Is Communism a Menace?" the Newmarket Era says that it is understandable that some people in this country and in Britain are half-hearted in their sympathy with Russia against Germany. It points out that Russia did not come into the war with its hands clean, but Russia's aggressions are not the real quarrel that most people have with the Soviet. The Era continues by saying that most of the old world nations have made mistakes and people are broadminded enough to realize this fact.

The question of lack of sympathy with Russia is to our mind largely one of that nation's record in the past few years. It is true, as The Era suggests, that Russia has made a lot of enemies centage of the young men signing up for active because it has sought to spread its political philosophy in other countries, and that that philosophy includes the overthrow of governments by force. The editorial continues by pointing out that the main difference between Naziism and communism is that the former is a fanatical doctrine of racial superiority and expansion while the other is an economic and political doctrine which all the world is invited to adopt.

While what The Era says may be true, we hardly believe that the feelings of most people are based on these premises. Russia crushed the church and tried to make its people atheistic. It Many Canadians look upon this method of has killed millions of its citizens by starvation securing recruits as conscription by subterfuge and by successive purges. HELD AT ST. PAUL'S

The harvest Thanksgiving services last Sunday were well attended and the church looked specially beautiful with the harvest decorations.

The flowers on the altar and on the memorial tablet were magnificent gladioli, while little sheaves of grain marked each seat all down the church, and every window was decorated with grain and fruit and red berries. The font was crowned with a mass of autumn flowers, while at the base were fruit and vegetables and sheaves of grain. There were baskets of flowers and children had dinner at the all along the choir-stalls and huge stalks of Prince's plume at the sides.

In the morning Prof. Coggan, M.A., of Wycliffe College, Toraddress. In the evening Capt. the Rev. H. C. Cox, M.A., M.C., of the local military camp, was the interesting speaker.
